

SARAH OAKLEY.

[To accompany bill H. R. No. 147.]

MARCH 5, 1840.

Mr. HAND, from the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, made the following

REPORT :

The Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of Sarah Oakley, ask leave to report :

That the petitioner proves that she became the wife of Cornelius Oakley about the year 1789; that the said Cornelius Oakley died on the 12th day of January, 1805; that she still remains his widow; that the said Cornelius Oakley, in the year 1776, became warmly engaged in the partisan warfare carried on upon the river Hudson and the adjoining country, and so continued until the year 1783; that he often acted as guide to the American army, drew rations, had his quarters at headquarters, was in several severe skirmishes, and was distinguished for his daring and bravery; that his name was not enrolled in the army, but that he was with the army and rendered much service.

Your committee are aware that to grant a pension in this case may be deemed introducing a novel principle, but they think these services analogous to those of spies, and, in this case, of a strictly military character.

Your committee, therefore, consider this a case calling for the favorable consideration of Congress, and, therefore, beg leave to report a bill in favor of the petitioner.

Blair & Rives, printers.

SARAH OAKLEY.
[To accompany bill H. R. No. 147.]

MARCH 5, 1840.

Mr. HAND, from the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, made the following

REPORT:

The Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of Sarah Oakley, ask leave to report:

That the petitioner proves that she became the wife of Cornelius Oakley about the year 1789; that the said Cornelius Oakley died on the 12th day of January, 1805; that she still remains his widow; that the said Cornelius Oakley, in the year 1776, became warmly engaged in the partisan warfare carried on upon the river Hudson and the adjoining country, and so continued until the year 1783; that he often acted as guide to the American army, drew rations, had his quarters at headquarters, was in several severe skirmishes, and was distinguished for his daring and bravery; that his name was not enrolled in the army, but that he was with the army and rendered much service.

Your committee are aware that to grant a pension in this case may be deemed introducing a novel principle, but they think these services analogous to those of spies, and in this case, of a strictly military character. Your committee, therefore, consider this a case calling for the favorable consideration of Congress, and, therefore, beg leave to report a bill in favor of the petitioner.

Blair & Hives, printers